

For session three of Sprouting Together the groups joined in exploring the different fashion styles from both generations. First, the participants completed an art collage project. With this, a collage was made from pictures that were brought in from each family. The pictures displayed the different types of fashion from the grandparent and grandchild's era. Following this activity, a small fashion show was put on by the grandchildren and some of the grandparents. The children had the chance to dress up in clothes from the 60's and 70's. The grandparents had the option if they wanted to dress up along with the children or not.

Be sure to tune in next week for our coverage on “How Things Have Evolved”.
Test your knowledge and see how many “gadgets” you can guess correctly.
Sprouting Together meets each Monday from 6:00-7:30 p.m. until April 21st.